Dubbed the Soho Farmhouse of Ibiza, this 300-year-old family farm, which opened as a hotel in 2004, is a picturesque piece of Ibiza just waiting to be discovered. Sitting within 13ha of land, sprawling orange groves and manicured Mediterranean gardens provide the backdrop to the beautiful property, where peacocks and cats stroll around freely. Taking you back to nature, the luxuriousness comes from the finca-meets-farm design, with nine swimming pools, countless sunbeds, a serene spa and two restaurants.

With farm-to-table food, a self-generated electricity supply, its own natural well for water, and electric bikes on site for guests to enjoy, its sustainable credentials are also worth noting. Just be warned – with only 24 rooms on site, this boutique hotel gets booked up quickly, so be sure to reserve well in advance, to avoid disappointment.
